Bielawski, Kazimierz
(~1815 - 1905)

BUILDER OF AUSTRIAN FORTRESSES IS DEAD.

Captain Casimir Bielawski Dies at His Home on California Street.

Captain Casimir Bielawski, who as an Austrian military engineer, won fame by building noted forts more than half a century ago, died yesterday morning at his home, at 2302½ California street. He had passed his ninetieth birthday. Gastritis was the cause of death.

Bielawski superintended the construction of a famous fort at Venice in 1844, when that portion of Italy was under Austrian rule. He also directed the building of the Mantua fortress, as well as several other Austrian strongholds. He witnessed the massacre at Galicia in 1846, and as a result of the relentless slaying was turned against those at the head of his native land. He secured leave of absence, visited France and England, and when the Austrian Government began to press him to return into service he came to the United States.

Captain Bielawski arrived in California in 1853. He secured a position in the Government Land Surveying Office here, and because of his expert knowledge in surveying held his position through various administrations covering forty-five years. He finally resigned because of old age. Mrs. Bielawski died about four years ago and from that time on the aged military Captain's health failed rapidly.

PIONEER PASSES FROM THE RANKS OF REMAINING FEW

Captain Casimir Bielawski, Well-Known Citizen, Dies at Advanced Age.

Captain Casimir Bielawski, a pioneer, who had for forty-five years been connected in the Surveyor General's office in this city, died at his home yesterday at the age of 90 years.

Captain Bielawski was a civil engineer and did faithful service in the department of the Surveyor General. He was a native of Galicia, Poland, and took an active part in the construction of some famous forts in Italy. He came to this country when quite young, coming to San Francisco and establishing here.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 2302½ California street to-day and the interment will be at Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

HIS LIFE.

John F. Fiedler was born August 6, 1853 in Columbia Tuolumne county. His early youth was spent in San Francisco where he attended the Lincoln school. After that he clerked in a store at the New Alamden quicksilver mines, and later returned to San Francisco and worked in a carriage establishment. From San Francisco he went to Darwin, Inyo county and followed the vocation of a clerk in a store until moving to Lake county in 1881. He came to San Luis Obispo in the early eighties and opened a grocery store which he conducted until elected County Recorder in 1888.

In 1882 Mr. Fiedler was united in marriage with Miss Almira Parrish, who survives her husband with two sons, Ferdinand F. and Eugene S. The mother of the deceased is still living and is here to attend the funeral. A brother, Ferdinand Fiedler, and two sisters, Miss Caroline Fiedler of Sausalito and Mrs. Laura J. Bohlmann of San Jose, are also here.

Veteran Physician of Bay Region Dead at 92

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18.—Dr. Ladislas Pawlicki, 92 years old, a resident of San Francisco for 59 years, and until ten years ago actively engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery in this city, died in Mary's Help hospital. His home was at 2396 Pacific avenue.

Dr. Pawlicki, a veteran of the Crimean war, was a surgeon on the Russian ship Rynda when he first saw San Francisco in 1862. Two years later, when the Rynda was ordered home, he left the service and made his home in San Francisco. He married here in 1870 and is survived by two sons. Dr. C. F. Pawlicki and T. E. Pawlicki, an attorney, both of this city.

Two years ago, on celebrating his ninetieth birth anniversary, he gave as his recipe for long life, "work as hard as you wish, as many hours a day as you wish, provided your heart is in your work, and be moderate in all things."

Pietrzycki, Marcel

FORMER SAN FRANCISCO DOCTOR DIES SUDDENLY

Marcel M. Pietrzycki Stricken in Dayton, Wash.

[Special Dispatch to The Call]

DAYTON, Wash., Sept. 12.—Dr. Marcel M. Pietrzycki, one of the best known physicians of this state, died suddenly this morning at his home in this city. Doctor Pietrzycki was one of the earliest graduates of Toland medical college in San Francisco, and for some time enjoyed a lucrative practice in California. He came to this city in the early eighties, and at once became prominent in his profession. He acquired large land holdings and was known as one of the grain kings of the northwest. Recently he disposed of his immense ranch and toured Europe. While abroad he was attacked with heart failure and hastened home. He leaves a widow who was a daughter of the late Rev. James H. Warren of San Francisco.

PHILANTHROPIST

Polish Immigrant Who Located in Washington Shares His Big Estate.

Special Dispatch to the "Chronicle."

TACOMA (Wash.), September 21.—Dr. Marcel Pietrzycki, who died last week at Dayton, proves to be the foremost philanthropist Washington has produced. Last spring he gave Dayton thirty acres of land for a park. His will, filed today, leaves $100,000 for the building and maintenance of a trades school in Dayton to teach agriculture, horticulture and kindred subjects. In a clause covering this bequest the donor suggests "not bookworms, but honorable and useful men and women should be the product of this school."

After setting aside $20,000 for the publication and distribution of his books and writings, Dr. Pietrzycki leaves $8000 to Dayton for beautifying its new park, $125,000 to his wife, besides an annuity of $2600; $12,500 to relatives in Austria, $30,000 to relatives in America and a fund of $5000 to his brother in Gallicia for the education of poor members of his family.

Dr. Pietrzycki was born in Gallicia, a Polish province of Austria, sixty-seven years ago, and left an orphan at an early ago. Twenty years ago an auctioneer requested him to bid $800 on a quarter section of land, and jestingly the doctor consented. His bid took the land. From this start he acquired 5500 acres near Starbuck, which he recently sold for over $300,000. Twice he attempted to interest the poor of Eastern Washington in establishing a co-operative colony, offering to give the land. He had been Mayor of Dayton and president of the Eastern Washington Medical Society.

THE LATE CAPTAIN I'll)Till)WSKI [ARTICLE]

THE LATE CAPTAIN PIOTROWSKI.

Death of a California Pioneer and Veteran of the Polish Wars.

Mr Alexander Bednawski, a veteran of the Polish war of 1831 and Secretary of the Polish Society of California, furnishes the Alta with the following sketch of the late Captain Piotrowski:

By many friends and acquaintances will be sorrowfully received the news of the demise of that well-known and generally-respected old Californian pioneer, Captain R. K. Piotrowski, at the age of 70. He was born in Poland in 1814. While a youth he fought bravely for the independence of his down trodden country in that memorable struggle of Poland against Russia in 1831. Notwithstanding his youth he was promoted on the field to the rank of Sub-Lieutenant and decorated with the Golden Cross, "Virtuti Militari", the higest distinction then in the Poland army. He came to California about 1854 and at the very start engaged in the mining business, soon afterward he bought a large tract of land on the Sacramento river where, in company with one of his old fellow-at-arms, he founded a colony called Sebastopol—a little, thriving place. He was really identified with the growth, prosperity and politics of the State. At the time of the Civil War he espoused warmly the cause of the Union, and he was always a stanneh Republican, supporting with zeal his party to the very last, for which he was rewarded by Governor Pacheco with an appointment as Commissioner of Immigration. That office he filled up to the expiration of his term, to the highest satisfaction of his superiors and parties concerned. Although in retirement, he never missed an opportunity to do his duty as a good citizen. He was also one of the founders of the Polish Society of California and an active member. Unfortunately, of late he has been afflicted with soreness of his eyes, and submitted to a painful operation in this city, which proved unsuccessful. This threw him out into utter despondency, which preyed upon his health, already enfeebled by advanced age and many vicisssitudes. About a year ago he left San Franscico for New York, and thence sailed directly to France, seeking restoration from the eminent physicians at Paris. Some time after he went to a small place called Saintes, in the Department of Charente Inferieure, where, after a short illness, he breathed his last peacefully on the 21st of February last, in the arms of his only daughter, living there and married to a very respectable party. Peace to his ashes. A COMRADE.

Prag, Martin

MARTIN PRAG.

Martin Prag, an old and highly esteemed merchant, died on Thursday at his residence, 818 Filbert street. He arrived in this city in pioneer days and engaged in the tinware and stove business, at which he quickly acquired a fortune. He was a native of Warsaw, Poland, and was aged 68 years and 6 months. He leaves three daughters to mourn his loss. Mr. Prag was a prominent Mason, and will be interred under the auspices of the fraternity. The funeral services will take place at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Masonic Temple.

PRAG—In this city, February 5, Martin Prag, beloved husband of the late Rebecca Prag and father of Sarah, Gussie and Bella Prag, a native of Warsaw, Poland, aged 68 years, 6 months and 3 days.

☞ Friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend the funeral to-morrow (Sunday), at 10:30 o'clock, from his late residence, 818 Filbert street, thence to the Masonic Temple, where services will be held. Interment, Hills of Eternity Cemetery, San Mateo.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

Martin Prag, One of the City's Oldest Merchants, Passes Away.

Another pioneer is gone. Martin Prag, one of the oldest merchants in this city, died at his residence, 818 Filbert street, on Thursday. Mr. Prag was engaged in the stove and tinware business, and as early as 1852 secured the contract for supplying the Pacific Mail Steamship Company with tinware fittings. This proved a large source of revenue and he grew rich. Mr. Prag was born in Warsaw, Poland, and was in his sixty-ninth year. He was the father of three sons, who died some years ago, and of three daughters, who survive him. His funeral will take place to-day from the Masonic Temple at 10:30 A. M. He will be buried in the San Mateo Cemetery.

Death of Martin Prag.

Martin Prag, an old and well-known merchant of this city, died on Thursday afternoon at his home on Filbert street.

Mr. Prag came here in the early fifties, and engaged in his business of tinware and stores. He rapidly made money, and for many years held the contract for supplying the Pacific Mail steamships with all their fittings in the culinary department.

Mr. Prag was born in Warsaw, Poland, and when but a boy came to New York. He was sixty-eight years old, and leaves three daughters. He was a Mason, and will be buried by that order to-day.

Sinkwitz, Bolesław
(1828 – 1913)

1852 -

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR LATE HAYWARD CITIZEN

HAYWARD, Oct. 22.—Funeral services were held yesterday for William Sinkwitz, one of Hayward's most influential citizens who died at his home on C street Sunday. He was 85 years of age and had been a resident in Hayward for the last thirty-five years, coming here from Kalix, his birthplace in Russia. Sinkwitz was one of the local leaders of the Republican party and also held office on the board of trustees on several occasions.

Sinkwitz's journey from Russia to the Pacific coast was fraught with hardship and adventure. Lack of funds compelled him to walk from his native town in inland Russia to the coast. Determined to reach the United States he became a stowaway, and although discovered managed to land at New York and worked his way to the west coast. Sinkwitz was owner of extensive orchard land in Hayward.

He is survived by a son, F. C. Sinkwitz and four grandchildren, Myrtle and Charles Farrel and Gus and William Sinkwitz. Interment was in Lone Tree Cemetery.

A PIONEER'S DEATH.

C. W. H. Solinsky Passes Away at Chinese Camp.

C. W. H. Solinsky, aged 82 years, long a citizen of California, died at Chinese Camp yesterday. Solinsky was widely known and numbered friends in all parts of the State. He came to California in 1849, and settled at Chinese Camp. He was for a long time associated with Sol M. Miller, deceased, in mercantile pursuits and was express agent at the camp. For about forty years prior to his death Solinsky had been proprietor of the Garrett House, which was the stopping place for thousands of Yosemite tourists.

His wife died about thirty-two years ago, leaving three children, Mrs. Maggie Jackson, William H. Solinsky, both residing in Chinese Camp, and Frank J. Solinsky of San Andreas, a prominent attorney and former partner of the late Lieutenant-Governor J. B. Reddick.

THE LATE JOHN T. STRENTZEL.

A Sketch of the Pioneer Fruit-Grower of California—His Devotion to Horticulture.

John Theophile Strentzel, whose remains were interred at Martinez on Monday, November 3d, was born in Lublin, Poland, November 29, 1813. He entered the University of Warsaw at the time of the revolutionary disturbance and finding it expedient to remove on that account, he became a student and graduated, after taking a full course in the University of Pesth, in Hungary, as a physician in 1839. Soon after he emigrated to Texas, where he followed his profession for nine years. In 1849 he came to California and commenced practice in Tuolumne county, where, failing in health, and recognizing a definite object in life, he sought for a suitable locality for the cultivation of fruit. This he found in Alhambra Valley adjoining the town of Martinez, where he purchased 560 acres of unimproved land, on which he settled permanently with his wife. Here he became the true pioneer fruit-grower in the State, purchasing all his stock at great expense, experimenting with over one thousand varieties of fruit, beside many kinds of ornamental and flowering trees, with a view of determining which were best adapted to the climate of California. His extensive orchards of grapes and fruit have always been a model of scientific horticulture. He freely distributed grafts and cuttings to his friends and neighbors, and contributed the results of his labors to numerous publications and societies. This department of science occupied his special attention, and without the ambition of public fame he attained a wide and honorable reputation and became a recognized authority as a fruit-grower.

By persistent industry, he succeeded in amassing a moderate estate, although no distinct love of wealth became a factor in his character. On the contrary, he was ever ready to lend a helping hand to those who needed it. Bland and courteous in manner, considerate and kind in action and sociable in disposition, his circle of friends and his influence in public affairs enlarged with his growing years; and when he registered the final account of life, at the ripe age of seventy-seven, his departure was sorrowfully honored by the community which surrounded his home, and his numerous friends at more distant points.

He was prominent in all public and humane enterprises, and an active member of many scientific and other associations. He left a widow and one daughter, who is the wife of John Muir.

Strozynski Family Mausoleum Section D, Row 6, Area 1, Plot 4, OGV

Stanislaus Strozynski, who for years conducted a hair dressing establishment at 24 Geary street, died yesterday morning at his home, 404 Ellis street. The deceased was perhaps the best known man in his business in the city, and during his many years of toil he accumulated a fortune. Shortly after his death an order was made allowing the inspection of his papers, and among them his will was found.

By the terms of the will a small fortune is distributed among his employes. He said that he recognized the fact that his success was largely due to the efforts of his help, and in appreciation of the good and faithful work of his oldest employe, whom he called "Lulu," he bequeathed her one-half of his business and $1500. All of the other employes are bequeathed about $500 each, and as there are many the sum thus distributed by the appreciative hair dresser amounts to several thousand dollars.

DEATH OF DR. WIERZBICKI.—Dr. Wierzbicki, a Polish exile, well known to our citizens, died of congestion of the lungs, at 2 o'clock this morning, at his residence on Stockton street, after a short illness. He was one of the Polish refugees that were sent to the United States by the Austrian Government, after the failure of the last Polish revolt. Full of the patriotic ardor with which the entire noblesse of Poland was inspired, the young Wierzbicki, then a mere boy, escaped from his school and joined a regiment in the field. After two battles, the column to which he belonged was forced to retire into Austria. He was for awhile engaged in teaching. A large class of Amherst (Mass.) College graduates will remember him as their teacher in French in the year 1839, and his French Grammar was used as the text-book in that institution. He came to California in 1848, and the first book published concerning the mines of this State was written by him, and printed in this city. He was, at the time of his death, connected with the Assayer's department of our Mint, and was well known as a gentleman of scientific attainments, of integrity and worth. He was about 45 years old.

Zabriskie, James Cannon

Death of Colonel James C. Zabriskie.

Colonel James C. Zabriskie, a well-known and highly-esteemed citizen, died at 10 A. M. to-day at his family residence, corner of Eddy and Jones streets. Colonel Zabriskie was born at Hackensack, N. J., in January, 1804, and was consequently seventy-nine years of age. In his youth he was full of military spirit and became actively identified with the militia of his native State. He commanded a company that went to Washington at the first inauguration of General Jackson as President of the United States, and maintained thereafter the most pleasant relations with "Old Hickory."

Colonel Zabriskie came to California in 1849. He came with a company of twenty-five men, fully armed and equipped as a military organization. At Panama he purchased the vessel Constellation, hired a Captain, took his own company, together with some passengers, and landed in San Francisco on July 4, 1849. Here the company disbanded, and the Colonel went to Sacramento and settled down to hard work as a lawyer. He was the first City Attorney of Sacramento, and drew the first charter of the city. He resided there until shortly after the flood of 1861, when he came to San Francisco and continued the practice of law. He led an active professional life, devoting his attention particularly to land cases. His treatise on the land laws of the United States is recognized as one of the best works on the subject ever published, and is quoted wherever the practice extends.

Colonel Zabriskie was originally a Democrat, but went with the drift of the Union tide to the support of Edward Stanly and Leland Stanford, and stumped the State for each in their respective gubernatorial campaigns. In a similar manner he supported John Bigler in two earlier campaigns, when running as the successful Democratic candidate for Governor.

The deceased pioneer leaves a widow, one son and four daughters, who gathered around his bedside during the last illness and ministered with tender affection to every want of the sufferer. The son is Colonel James A. Zabriskie, United States Attorney for Arizona, who left his station in that Territory in response to a telegram announcing his father's sickness. The daughters are Mrs. R. H. Sinton, Mrs. Frank Ladd and Miss Lulu Zabriskie of San Francisco, and Mrs. Day of Carson, Nevada, (formerly Mrs. J Neely Johnson.)

Colonel Zabriskie was distinguished among public men as a dignified and earnest speaker. He also had an inclination toward journalism, and became interested in the newspaper business at Sacramento. He frequently contributed to the Bulletin over his own signature, as many of our readers will recollect, and also wrote anonymously on many occasions in the advocacy of public interests. Throughout life he took an active interest in public affairs and was never silent or inactive when a crisis demanded courageous speech or prompt action.

The sickness which preceded his death lasted about two weeks, the ailment seeming to be in the liver. At times the paroxysms of pain were intense, but his last hours were calm and apparently painless. He was consoled by the presence of his wife and children, and, having lived beyond the measure of life allotted to man, passed away peacefully.
